About Stone Paper

Stone Paper is a revolutionary paper that is made of recycled construction waste. There are no trees, fibers or bleach present in this paper, and no water is used in the production process. It is instead composed of a mineral powder (75-80% calcium carbonate) and a non-toxic resin (20% PE) which acts as a binder to create this environmentally-friendly, reusable, tree-free paper.

Stone Paper performs like other paper, but it has many unique advantages. Its production uses 50% less energy than traditional paper and it requires 20-30% less ink for printing, while still holding exceptional print quality. Other attractive characteristics include its smooth surface, durability, reusability and water-resistant material.
